High Point Market, this October, is truly a reunion and a return to what we all love. What better time to begin living poetically? At Poetic Pillow, we get inspired by the great works of fine art. Our collections bring culture, passion, and brilliance to your home.

THIS TIME, LIVE POETICALLY

The ornithologist John Gould perhaps single-handedly created the field of bird study in Australia. His identification of birds in the Eastern Hemisphere brought hundreds of species to the attention of Charles Darwin. Playful cockatoos and stunning parrots – each brings its own adventure to any living space. Whether it's the lively dancing manakins, or the brightly-colored trogons, there are so many avian friends to choose from in our newest collection of flange pillows! Your customers are sure to find something they love.

William Chapman Hewitson's passion for butterflies was unmistakable. His extensive collection became one of the most important of the early 19th century. His talent as a scientific illustrator enters the realm of the spiritual. We chose his intense vermillion and midnight blue hues for our velveteen chenille fabric pillows available in square and lumbar sizes.

We know you'll want to discover the paint-whisperer of Chinoiserie, who renders flowers with such exquisite sensitivity that it almost takes one's breath away. Living in the 18th century, Wang Cheng-pei excelled in poetry, paleography, and calligraphy, but it is his paintings that really command attention. We are thrilled to introduce these pillows at this time. Come by our booth, SAMS Salon G-6038, and see how your customers can Live Poetically!
