Thompson Celebrates Return to High Point Spring Market with New Products, Events & Special Guests

Greensboro, NC (April 2025) – Thompson, a leader in handcrafted sinks, vanities, range hoods, tubs, barware, and home accessories, announces its return to High Point Spring Market this April. The brand will once again showcase its products in Booth M20 on the second floor of 313 Space—a new design center that opened last fall in Downtown High Point, NC.

Thompson's updated booth will feature several product additions, including The Kintsugi Collection. This brand-new line of fireclay kitchen sinks is making its debut at Spring Market, and this is the first time the public will see and interact with these stunning designs.

Members of the storied Van Winkle family will be in the Thompson booth on Friday, April 25th and Saturday, April 26th to share our Everyday Heirlooms Collection with guests and attendees. This is the first time the Van Winkles will be at market on behalf of Pappy & Company and the brand's popular collaboration with Thompson.

Knikki Grantham, Creative Director of Keeler Brass Company, will also be on hand to discuss the KeelerxThompson Strategic Design Alliance on Friday, April 25th through Sunday, April 27th. Attendees will be able to explore select products from the KeelerxThompson Strategic Design Finish Guide and learn more about Keeler Brass Company's beautiful knobs, pulls, and decorative hardware for the home.

PRODUCT LAUNCH: The Kintsugi Collection

Introducing The Kintsugi Collection. This bold fusion of art and utility is inspired by the ancient Japanese art of repairing broken pottery by mending the areas of breakage with lacquer mixed with powdered precious metals. Hand-crafted by artist Trevor Waring, each fireclay apron-front kitchen sink in the collection features a unique Kintsugi-inspired design, with "strokes" and "scars" available in three expressive styles to match your design aesthetic. Choose from inlays of Gold (23-carat), Fine Silver (99.9% Silver), or Copper to create a striking centerpiece in your next kitchen project. As with all Thompson products, customization is available to ensure your client's sink is as personal as it is functional.
