Nothing beats the beauty of nature. The raw terracotta pots will develop a natural patina that evolves over time. This is just a sign of the natural material 'working with the plant'. The colour changes emerge when salts and minerals within the soil and water percolate through the pores of the clay. Bergs Potter's terracotta pots epitomise the raw, organic beauty of nature, seamlessly blending into any interior aesthetic. Their earthy tones and textured surfaces enhance the visual appeal of indoor greenery, adding a touch of rustic elegance to every space. Whether adorning a minimalist modern loft or a cosy country cottage, these pots bring the essence of the outdoors inside, creating a harmonious ambience.

Pots Your Plants Love

More than just vessels for plants, Bergs Potter's terracotta pots prioritise plant health with their breathable properties. Crafted from porous terracotta, these pots allow for optimal airflow to the roots, preventing waterlogging and promoting healthy growth. By mimicking the natural environment, Bergs Potter empowers plant enthusiasts to cultivate thriving indoor gardens with ease and confidence.

Honouring Heritage Craftsmanship

At the heart of Bergs Potter lies a deep respect for heritage craftsmanship. Each pot is meticulously handmade by skilled artisans, employing traditional techniques passed down through generations. This dedication to craftsmanship ensures that every Bergs Potter pot is not merely a decorative object, but a testament to the enduring legacy of artisanal excellence to be passed on for generations.

BERGS RAW TERRACOTTA POTS KEY FEATURES

- Naturally Strong: All pots are made of premium Italian clay, fired at high temperatures without any added chemicals, ensuring the pure beauty of nature.
- Breathable Design: The porous nature of terracotta allows for optimal airflow to the roots, promoting healthy growth and moisture regulation. This feature ensures plants thrive in the best possible conditions.
- Ages with Grace: The raw terracotta pots develop a natural patina over time, enhancing their beauty and uniqueness.
- Natural Insulation: The terracotta pots possess natural insulating properties, helping to regulate the temperature of the soil and roots. This insulation protects plants from extreme temperature fluctuations, keeping them comfortable and thriving in various weather conditions.
- Frost Resistance: The unglazed terracotta pots are naturally frost-resistant, making them suitable for outdoor use in all seasons. Proper drainage and protection ensure their durability, even in harsh weather conditions.
- Suitable for Indoor Use: Most pots are designed with a complimentary waterproof saucer, providing a protective base for pots without the need to worry about water damage or mould.

ABOUT BERGS POTTER

Since 1942, Bergs Potter has crafted premium products for plants and people to thrive in harmony. Timeless designs crafted with love the traditional way. All made to last for generations. Bergs Potter makes plant pots and vases designed in Denmark and lovingly crafted at small potteries in Tuscany and Porto. Premium clay and a high-firing process make the terracotta pots strong and durable, yet porous, giving plants optimal growing conditions. Bergs Potter offers a wide range of pots, from the cute little bookshelf pot to the substantial floor pot, all with a watertight saucer, so they can be used both indoors and outdoors. The glazed range includes a vibrant selection of indoor pots and vases in timeless colours.
