HICKORY WHITE INTRODUCES SANCTUARY RESERVE AT HIGH POINT MARKET

HIGH POINT, N.C. – This October, Hickory White is excited to introduce Sanctuary Reserve, a collection rooted in the elegance of traditional American design, reimagined for contemporary living.

“Drawing on classical American design, each piece has been reinterpreted for today’s lifestyle, creating silhouettes that honor heritage while feeling refreshingly current,” said Chuck Auten, vice president of casegoods merchandising.

With dry, open grain finishes and rustic oak foundations, Sanctuary Reserve offers a quiet richness. Details like coined-edged hardware and pierced pulls with tassels have been carefully chosen to add character without becoming overwhelming.

Sanctuary Reserve offers customizable and curated finishes along with hardware options to create pieces that fit any vision. Whether it is a style that leans classic or traditional, transitional or statement-making, this collection is tailored towards the customer.

This collection has style with staying power. With forms that feel timeless, these pieces will ensure a home looks as good in a decade as it does today.

Sanctuary Reserve by Hickory White celebrates the art of traditional craftsmanship and timeless design, and every piece has a story to tell.

780-10 Solana Dining Table – The Solana Dining Table commands attention with its sleek form and expressive design. Its expansive maple top floats above dual crescent-shaped pedestals finished in satin brass, offering a bold contrast to the light wood surface.

783-31-00 Lucy Console Table – This Console makes a statement through its slender silhouette and eye-catching detail. Crafted in a Benjamin Moore Blue Springs finish from the custom color match finish program, it features six fluted legs adorned with platinum striping that creates subtle punctuation along its frame. A lower shelf adds function without sacrificing style.

5108-05 Ryter Sofa – The Ryter Sofa features gentle curves and tailored edges in a refined profile that exudes an easygoing and fresh feel. A bench seat and exposed tapered legs add a sense of balance, while the tight back and subtly flared arms keep the look clean.

ABOUT HICKORY WHITE
