Retro Glam Meets Postmodern Edge: Oliver Gal Brings Designer-Curated Luxury and Artisan-Crafted Innovation to High Point Market Fall 2025

Miami, FL - October 2025 - Oliver Gal, the award-winning contemporary art house known for pushing creativity and craft, returns to High Point Market October 25–29 with an energizing showcase at IHFC C365.

Oliver Gal continues to define luxury art with one-of-a-kind pieces that elevate interiors and empower self-expression, crafted for design professionals who don't follow trends; they set them. This season, the brand sets the tone with defining movements shaping Fall 2025: the layered intensity of mixed-media maximalism, the playful sophistication of retro glam with a postmodern edge, and the growing demand for luxe personal storytelling through customizable design.

“Market this season is all about elevated designer experiences and trend-led storytelling, and that’s exactly what Oliver Gal delivers,” said Ana Sánchez-Gal, Co-Founder and CEO. “Our Fall 2025 releases balance innovation with hand-embellished artistry and made-to-order options that today’s designers expect.”

A marquee highlight is Check Please Redux, a fresh evolution of Oliver Gal’s cult-favorite series. The collection amplifies mixed-media maximalism with layered tactility, witty graphic interplay, and flexible specifications designed for personalization. “Designers want pieces that are savvy yet deeply personal,” said Lola Sánchez, Co-Founder and Chief Creative Officer. “Check Please Redux embodies that spirit with a wink of retro glam and postmodern edge, reading as both design statement and conversation starter.”

Throughout the showroom, visitors will discover richly textured surfaces, dimensional finishes, high-shine accents, and sculptural forms that bring these Fall 2025 directions to life. Each piece underscores Oliver Gal’s reputation for translating design visions into singular works that transform space and tell a story.

Oliver Gal will present its Fall 2025 lineup, including Check Please Redux and additional debuts, at IHFC C365, October 25–29. Guests are invited to stop by daily for complimentary drinks and bites while exploring the collection in an immersive, hospitality-inspired setting.

With meticulous craftsmanship, sustainability-minded production, and a commitment to designer-first customization, Oliver Gal has become a trusted partner for interior professionals worldwide.
