Thayer Coggin Introduces the Okay Sectional Sofa Designed by Ransom Culler at Fall High Point Market

HIGH POINT, NC – Thayer Coggin proudly presents the Okay Sectional Sofa, a new design by Ransom Culler debuting at the Fall High Point Furniture Market. The Okay Sectional Series celebrates the balance between artistry and comfort, pairing graceful contours with strong geometric structure to create a look that is both modern and inviting.

Distinguished by its modern, sculptural silhouette, the Okay sectional showcases maple veneered “O” bases and solid maple sled legs, available in any Thayer Coggin maple wood finish. Each piece is bench-made in High Point, North Carolina, by Thayer Coggin’s skilled craftspeople, meticulously constructed to achieve the sectional’s complex geometry and seamless integration of form and comfort.

“The Okay Sectional Series presents a harmonious blend of graceful lines and geometric forms,” says designer Ransom Culler. “It’s designed to create an interior space that feels both sophisticated and approachable — a balance of style, structure, and comfort.”

As the “twin sister” to Thayer Coggin’s popular Heidi series, the Okay sectional carries a cosmopolitan air — refined yet inviting, suited to thoughtfully composed modern spaces. Loose poly-blend down seat cushions and Trillium backs, all double-needle stitched, contribute to its inviting nature. Comfort wrinkles are expected as part of the sofa’s lived-in, welcoming appeal.

“We’re excited to introduce the Okay sectional, which truly demonstrates the artistry and precision of our craftspeople,” says Phil Miller, vice president of marketing for Thayer Coggin. “Its construction is incredibly sophisticated, and the result is a piece that embodies both modern elegance and exceptional comfort.”

Founded in 1953, Thayer Coggin has built a catalog of classic modern designs through a half-century of collaboration with renowned designers such as Milo Baughman, Rick Lee, Ransom Culler, and Stanley Jay Friedman. Each piece is bench-made to order in High Point, North Carolina, blending timeless design with enduring craftsmanship.
