

Pollack Design Director Rachel Doriss to Present “Selecting Textiles with Purpose” CEU at High Point Fall Market

September 2026 (New York, NY)—Pollack Design Director Rachel Doriss will present Selecting Textiles with Purpose: How to Specify the Right Fabric for Your Project on Sunday, October 18 at 2:00 PM ET at the American Leather Showroom.

Drawing on her expertise in textile design and development, Doriss will offer a practical look at what goes into selecting the right fabric for a project, from fiber content and fabric construction to performance and end-use requirements. The presentation will also cover key considerations before placing an order, as well as how to properly inspect and evaluate textiles upon arrival to help ensure quality, consistency and project success.

About Pollack

Pollack is a boutique design company celebrated for its innovative residential and hospitality textiles, available exclusively through interior designers and architects. Every fabric's pattern begins with hand-drawn artwork created by our in-house design studio. Pollack is known as much for its meticulously crafted textures as for its graphic signature patterns and one-of-a-kind designs.

Beyond creating textiles, Pollack is an expert resource for the design community sharing its knowledge of textile design, materials, and craftsmanship with designers, architects, and students.

About American Leather

American Leather was founded on a simple idea: no one should wait months for custom furniture. What began as a small, engineer-led team in a borrowed workshop has grown into a team of more than 700 craftspeople working together in a 350,000-square-foot Dallas facility. Every piece is crafted under one roof with precision and pride. Designed to support and made to last, American Leather is an uncompromising blend of form and function, providing indulgent comfort with countless customization options that make each piece one-of-a-kind. Today, American Leather sets the standard for custom-made furniture: purposeful design, engineered craftsmanship, and timeless comfort for the way people really live.