

American Leather Introduces A.L. Studio, a New Premium Collection of Statement Furniture

Created with interior designers in mind, this new capsule pairs expressive, fresh silhouettes with American craftsmanship

DALLAS (October 2026) – American Leather, a leading designer and manufacturer of custom, made-to-order furniture, is launching A.L. Studio, a new premium collection of design-forward upholstered pieces. Made to order in America, A.L. Studio pairs expressive silhouettes and a fresh perspective with the craftsmanship, customization, and quality for which American Leather has long been known.

Created as a dedicated home for American Leather’s most editorial and design-led pieces, A.L. Studio explores the space between timeless references and what feels new now. Sculptural curves, unexpected proportions, and thoughtful material details give the collection a unique point of view, while an expansive upholstery selection gives designers the freedom to make each piece their own.

“We created A.L. Studio to give designers more forward-looking pieces. Many know us for our best-in-class sleeper, so we wanted to show them how our approach to manufacturing—combining unmatched speed with exceptional quality—can bring truly original ideas to life: a statement collection with a strong point of view, distinctive shapes, and room for creative risks in the furniture space,” said Dan Campbell, EVP of American Leather. “But underneath all of that is something equally important: A.L. Studio stays true to American Leather's roots, with pieces that are made to order in America, highly customizable and backed by the quality designers need to specify them with confidence."

The debut assortment includes a collection of four sofa styles—also available with a chaise or as a sectional—plus eight accent chairs, two beds, a daybed, and a chaise. Customization is central to the A.L. Studio offering with more than 500 upholstery options, ranging from richly textured mohair and bouclé to performance linens and premium leathers, with COM and COL also available.

A.L. Studio will continue to evolve with new introductions each season, building a collection that feels fresh and considered while maintaining a recognizable design language of its own.

A.L. Studio officially launches at High Point Market in October 2026 and will be available to consumers through interior designers and select luxury retailers across the country in spring 2027. For more information, visit americanleather.com/studio.

About A.L. Studio

A.L. Studio is American Leather's premium collection of statement furniture, created with interior designers in mind. Made to order in America, A.L. About American Leather American Leather was founded on a simple idea: no one should wait months for custom furniture.

What began as a small, engineer-led team in a borrowed workshop has grown into a team of more than 700 craftspeople working together in a 350,000-square-foot Dallas facility. Every piece is crafted under one roof with precision and pride. Designed to support and made to last, American Leather is an uncompromising blend of form and function, providing indulgent comfort with countless customization options that make each piece one-of-a-kind. Today, American Leather sets the standard for custom-made furniture: purposeful design, engineered craftsmanship, and timeless comfort for the way people really live.
