313 Space Goes All In on the Heart of the Home, Debuting a Kitchen & Bath Expansion and Welcoming the ticking tent® for Fall High Point Market

HIGH POINT, N.C. Sept. 21, 2026 -- The Fall High Point Market, running October 14-20, 2026, is set to be one of the most exciting seasons yet at 313 Space. Building on an already inspiring and carefully curated mix of brands and makers, this market brings a wave of new vendor debuts, a major category expansion into Kitchen & Bath, and a standout experiential pop-up, the ticking tent®, to the building. The ticking tent pop-up will be open to the public and welcomes both trade and design-minded shoppers alike.

This fall, 313 Space will host:

- The grand unveiling of 313 Space's expansion into the Kitchens & Bath category in the Atrium
- The brocante-style design market, the ticking tent®, popping up from October 16th-18th, bringing its signature mix of antiques, artisans and design discoveries to High Point for the first time.
- The launch of a new Schwung lighting collection, showcased in a new gallery in the lobby
- An expanded focus on gardens and luxury outdoor living, with the introduction of Glaz Greenhouses, imported from France, and the return to High Point of Woodard Furniture, celebrating 160 years of crafting outdoor furniture in the U.S.
- An impressive roster of new exhibitors, makers and artists, including sustainably made Little Greene Paint Company, Mory Home, Ellis Works, and the New York-based plein-air painter, Jesse Alexander

A New Home for Kitchen & Bath

"We have built out every category at 313, and now we're going all in on the heart of the home: the kitchen," said Rudi Nijssen and Dominique Sente-Nijssen, co-founders of 313 Space.

Conceived as an alternative to the traditional market building, 313 Space is bringing its distinctive approach to craftsmanship and curation to the kitchen and bath category. This fall's roster includes luxury brands making their High Point debuts, returning after lengthy absences and expanding their existing presence at 313 Space.

"Great design can shape not only how a space looks, but how it feels and functions every day," says Julie Burns, executive director at Monogram. "High Point Market brings together a community that understands that deeply, and our presence at 313 Space creates a unique opportunity to share Monogram's perspective on luxury kitchen design in a highly curated, design-forward setting."

Isla Porter will exhibit at High Point for the first time this fall. "We are thrilled to join the thoughtfully curated group of kitchen and bath brands at 313 Space for this fall's High Point Market," says Emily Arthur, CEO and Chief Creative Officer of Isla Porter. "We have attended Market for years and have loved watching this beautifully restored mill become a destination for such an inspiring community of designers, artists, and makers. Participating for the first time as an exhibitor and introducing Isla Porter within this creative setting feels incredibly special."

Artistic Tile will also make its High Point debut at 313 Space. "High-end designers from around the country are going to High Point, and it's clear the market is no longer just about furniture," says Joshua Levinson, Artistic Tile CEO. "That evolution got us thinking about what a presence there could look like for us. 313 gave us the perfect fit: a flexible venue where we can get our start alongside some complementary brands and experience firsthand everything High Point has to offer."

"House of Rohl is proud to exhibit at High Point Market for the first time at 313 Space, alongside talented makers, craftsmen, and luxury brands", says Courtney Burge Senior Manager, Designer Engagement, "The setting is a natural complement to the brand's portfolio of plumbing and hardware, built on a foundation of provenance, craftsmanship and outstanding design."

"313 Space is the reason Thompson returned to High Point Market after an 18-year absence," says Clifford Thompson, President of Thompson Traders. "The building is full of creatives and makers who value the highest level of craftsmanship, which attracts the right blend of customers for our brand. While there has always been natural crossover with the kitchen and bath community, the recent decision to dedicate more efforts to attracting kitchen brands will continue to elevate 313 Space and High Point as a premier destination for these important designers and specifiers."

Unique Kitchens and Baths (UKB) will debut a new expanded showroom in the Atrium. "Showing at 313 has been such an important part of UKB's growth," says Tanya Smith-Shiflett, Founder & Senior NKBA Kitchen Designer. "It gave us the opportunity to share our cabinetry, connect with the design community, and continue evolving our brand. Expanding and moving into the Atrium feels like a natural next chapter -- allowing us to create a larger, more immersive space that truly represents where Unique Kitchens and Baths is headed."

the ticking tent® Comes to 313 Space

For the first time since its inaugural edition in March 2023, the ticking tent® is going "on tour," bringing its signature mix of antiques, artisans and design discoveries to High Point for Fall Market, October 16-18, in partnership with 313 Space. The event is open to the public and welcomes both trade and design-minded shoppers alike.

"The ticking tent is the perfect extension of the offerings we have curated throughout our building," says Alex Bates, Exhibitor Curator & Marketing Director at 313 Space. "313 has become a destination for High Point shoppers looking for unique treasures to fill their homes and those of their clients. 313 x the ticking tent are the perfect partners in the thrill of the hunt!"

Founded by communications and business development expert Christina Juarez and interiors editor and author Benjamin Reynaert, the ticking tent® is the original brocante-style design market, bringing together established dealers beloved by designers and collectors alongside a new generation of makers and tastemakers. A signature ticking-striped entry tent will lead visitors into the Moroccan Courtyard behind the 313 building and a large-scale tent filled with one-of-a-kind finds.

"Our shoppers come because they trust our eye," says Reynaert. "They know they'll discover something unexpected -- a rare textile, hand-painted ceramic, future heirloom, or simply the finishing touch for a room. They're looking for interiors that feel collected rather than consumed."

That appetite for experiential shopping has translated into nearly $1 million in sales in a single day at past editions, with close to 2,000 shoppers traveling from across the U.S. and increasingly from the UK and Europe. Beyond shopping, the High Point edition will include a Friday evening wood-fired pizza, Craft Cocktails & Shopping preview, a Saturday Early Bird Breakfast, the Benjamin Moore Espresso Edit coffee cart, the Doyle Auction House Candy Bar, and the second edition of the ticking tent times print newspaper and newsstand. The market's signature ticking fabric, created exclusively by UK textile brand Colours of Arley, will once again dress vendor tables and the market's recognizable welcome tent.

"At its heart, the ticking tent reflects a larger shift in how people want to shop," says Juarez. "After years of endless online choice, luxury is once again about curation, connection and discovery. It's shopping as it used to be -- and perhaps as it should be again."
