HARBOUR

Harbour Introduces Its 2027 Collections at High Point Market

Celebrating 50 years of craftsmanship, Harbour looks to its origins for a new collection of outdoor furniture shaped by heritage, traditional craftsmanship and a contemporary approach to outdoor living.

Los Angeles, California — October 2026 — Harbour, the Australian-born luxury outdoor furniture brand, will introduce its new 2027 collections at High Point Market, marking a significant new chapter for the family-owned company as it celebrates 50 years of design and craftsmanship.

At the centre of the launch is Harbour Heritage, a new design direction that looks back to the materials, forms and craftsmanship that shaped Harbour's beginnings.

Founded in Sydney in 1976 by Jim Condos, Harbour began as a family workshop grounded in metalwork and furniture making. Fifty years later, sons Nicholas and Harrison Condos have returned to those origins, reinterpreting traditional ironwork, natural stone and classical furniture forms for contemporary outdoor living.

Inspired by grand European provincial homes and the relationship between house, garden and landscape, the 2027 collections introduce a richer and more traditional expression of Harbour. Sculptural ironwork, travertine, marble, tailored upholstery and architectural forms come together in pieces designed to feel established within their surroundings while remaining unmistakably contemporary.

“Heritage is about looking back at where Harbour began and carrying that story forward. Growing up around our father’s workshop, we were surrounded by ironwork, stone and traditional furniture making. Fifty years later, we’ve returned to those materials and forms, reinterpreting them through the way we live today. It feels like a very personal collection for our family, and an important chapter for Harbour.”

— Nicholas Condos, Co-Founder & Chief Creative Officer

FIFTY YEARS OF HARBOUR

The 2027 collections arrive as Harbour celebrates its 50th anniversary, marking five decades since Jim and Harriett Condos established the original family business in Sydney.

For Harrison and Nicholas Condos, the milestone offered an opportunity not simply to revisit Harbour's archive, but to examine the principles that have remained constant across generations: craftsmanship, materiality, durability and furniture made for life outdoors.

The result is a collection that connects Harbour's past with its future — bringing traditional furniture-making techniques and materials into a new generation of outdoor spaces.

Harbour's 2027 collections will be presented at High Point Market at 313 Space, Showroom 212.

ABOUT HARBOUR

Founded in Sydney in 1976 by Jim Condos, Harbour began as a family workshop rooted in metal craftsmanship and furniture making.

Today, Harbour is led by brothers Nicholas and Harrison Condos, who have grown the company into an international outdoor lifestyle brand while maintaining the family's longstanding focus on design, craftsmanship and material innovation.

Drawing inspiration from Australia's relationship with the outdoors, Harbour designs furniture for residential, hospitality and commercial environments around the world. Its collections combine natural stone, metal, teak and performance textiles with an emphasis on comfort, durability and timeless design.

With showrooms across the United States, Australia and Asia, Harbour works with designers, architects and clients globally through its retail, Trade and Contract & Hospitality divisions. The brand also offers extensive customization capabilities, including more than 70 premium performance outdoor fabrics and a broad selection of material and finish options.

Harbour — Crafted for living. Designed for life.
