The Performance of GFRC

GFRC (Glass Fiber Reinforced Concrete) is an advanced composite material made from cement, fine aggregates, water, and alkali-resistant glass fibers. Unlike traditional concrete, which relies on steel reinforcement, GFRC utilizes glass fibers to create a product that is:

- Lightweight: Easier to transport and reposition than conventional concrete.
- Exceptionally Strong: High tensile strength resists cracking and everyday wear.
- Weather Resistant: Engineered to withstand sun, rain, humidity, and changing temperatures.
- Low Maintenance: Designed for lasting beauty with minimal upkeep.
- Design Versatile: Allows for sculptural forms, refined detailing, and natural stone-inspired finishes that would be difficult to achieve with traditional concrete.
