

Thayer Coggin Introduces Gaby by Ransom Culler at Fall 2026 High Point Market

Sweeping curves, an upholstered base and eight modular units offer a softer approach to modern lounging.

HIGH POINT, N.C., October 2026, Thayer Coggin introduces Gaby, a modular seating system designed by Ransom Culler, at Fall 2026 High Point Market. With gently curved frames, generous cushioning and a fully upholstered base, Gaby brings a soft, sculptural presence to contemporary interiors.

A graceful, sweeping curve gives the collection its distinctive character. Upholstery extends to the floor, creating a continuous profile that emphasizes the shape of each piece. Clean lines and carefully executed double-needle accents lend definition to the relaxed silhouette.

Gaby offers eight distinct units that can be combined to accommodate a range of floor plans and seating arrangements. Sofa, chaise and curved corner modules invite compositions that follow the room, from an intimate curved sofa to an expansive sectional. Coordinating ottomans extend the possibilities for lounging and gathering.

Loose poly blend-down seat cushions and fiber-down loose back cushions provide a relaxed yet supportive sit. The combination of plush cushioning and gently shaped frames makes Gaby as inviting to settle into as it is to arrange.

Handmade in Thayer Coggin's High Point, North Carolina workshops, Gaby can be upholstered in the company's curated selection of in-house fabrics or leathers, or specified in customer's own material (COM). The range of upholstery choices allows designers to tailor the collection to individual interiors.

Gaby will debut in Thayer Coggin's showrooms at 230 South Road in High Point, next to the company's workshops. For more information, visit thayercoggin.com or call 336-841-6000.
