FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BDI Expands Dining Collection for Fall 2026

Building on its spring debut in dining, BDI introduces new tables, seating, storage, materials and configurations as the category continues to grow.

September 2026 | Chantilly, VA — Just months after unveiling its first dining collection, BDI is expanding the category for Fall 2026 with new designs, sizes, materials and seating options that signal a growing commitment to the dining room.

Halcyon™, Bloom™ and Cove™, first previewed in spring and scheduled to begin shipping later this year, established the foundation for BDI's move into dining. For fall, that assortment grows substantially with the introduction of the new Elio™ Sideboard, a more compact Halcyon Dining Table, a Sand Travertine sintered-stone option for Bloom, new Cove Counter and Bar Stools, and a new Latte performance upholstery.

The expansion continues BDI's evolution from the media and office furniture for which it has long been known into more areas of the home, including storage, bedroom and now dining. Across each category, the company brings the same focus on thoughtful engineering, material innovation and useful details designed to make everyday living work better.

“Dining is about much more than putting a table and chairs in a room,” said BDI founder and Design Director Bill Becker. “It is where people gather, entertain and live every day, and that creates opportunities to solve problems through design. As we have developed the collection, we have continued to find ways to make these spaces more useful, comfortable and beautiful.”

ELIO™ SIDEBOARD

Making its debut for Fall 2026, the Elio Sideboard extends BDI's approach to intelligent storage into the dining room while complementing the Halcyon collection.

Elio pairs a warm walnut cabinet with an Ivory Travertine sintered-stone top, creating a durable surface designed to withstand the demands of dining and entertaining. Two upper drawers provide convenient storage for linens, serving pieces and other tabletop essentials and feature neoprene liners that help keep contents protected and in place.

Behind four doors, adjustable shelving provides flexible storage for larger dining and entertaining pieces. A pull-out tray offers easy access to heavier or bulkier items and can be positioned on either side of the cabinet, making it equally useful for serving pieces, appliances or bar storage.

HALCYON™ EXPANDS

Introduced in spring, the Halcyon Dining Table combines a sculptural walnut base with an Ivory Travertine sintered-stone surface and integrated storage drawers that keep dining essentials conveniently at hand.

SMART DESIGNS FOR MODERN LIVING

For Fall 2026, BDI is adding a more compact 72-inch version of Halcyon, providing the same design and functionality in a size better suited to six-person dining and smaller spaces. It joins the original 84-inch table previewed earlier this year.

A NEW MATERIAL FOR BLOOM™

Bloom brings a softer, more sculptural expression to BDI dining, with a round top supported by a distinctive three-part pedestal base designed to provide stability while preserving generous space below the table.

For fall, Bloom expands beyond its original satin-etched Oyster glass surface with a new Sand Travertine sintered-stone top. Mounted over a beveled glass underside, the new surface gives Bloom a warmer, more architectural character while offering the durability and easy-care performance of sintered stone.

COVE™ GROWS BEYOND THE DINING TABLE

Also first introduced in spring, the Cove Dining Chair pairs a gently curved walnut back with a slim powder-coated steel frame and performance upholstery designed for everyday dining.

For fall, Cove adds a new Latte upholstery—a warm brown alternative to the original Oatmeal fabric. Both are high-performance materials selected for durability, stain resistance and ease of care.

The collection also expands vertically with new Cove Counter and Bar Stools, bringing the same design language to kitchen islands, counters and bar-height settings. Both stool heights will be offered in Oatmeal and Latte upholstery with Black or Satin Bronze powder-coated steel frames and Cove's signature curved walnut back.

Together, the Fall 2026 additions represent the next phase of BDI's expansion into dining—broadening the collection before its initial introductions have even reached consumers and giving the company a growing presence in another important room of the home.
