SUBMATERIAL ANNOUNCES NEW ADDITIONS TO ITS COLLECTION OF HANDMADE FELT WALL ART

ALBUQUERQUE (NM), 27 MARCH 2023 - Submaterial, best known for its striking wool felt architectural finishes, announces additions to its collection of wall art designs. For over a decade, Submaterial has created large-scale dimensional wool felt wall coverings for commercial clients. Through a commercial partnership with Filzfelt, the Index and Figure series and the bold designs of the Acoustic collection have added meticulously crafted, colorful, and natural sound softening to lobbies, offices, banks, and commercial environments all over the country. In recent years, Submaterial has focused on designing thoughtful handmade decor for residential spaces.

The Submaterial Wall Art collection demonstrates the precise handwork and vibrant interplay of color, texture, and form that has become the studio's standard. The full collection of wall art uses a range of natural materials such as wool felt, cork, leather, and wood. Each panel is worked with skill and craftsmanship to produce a beautiful decor piece that adds a warm, rich visual focus to any residential space.

The two new wall art panels are Lyric Flat and Orion Flat. They join the Odessa Flat panel introduced in 2022. These panels are a playful inverse of Submaterial's wall art pieces that use felt on edge to create deep dimensionality. Instead of creating height with felt tabs on end, these flat panels dig below the surface. Like the arroyos and acequias crisscrossing our New Mexico home, the surface of the new panels map shallow yet connected channels. The three layers of felt that make up the surface are rendered in contrasting colors, highlighting the negative spaces and producing a low-set panel that looks different when viewed straight on or from the side.

Like all Submaterial designs, these flat panels are highly customizable. One can fabricate the piece with the topmost felt details all in one color for a subtle look, two colors for a bit more visual interest, or four colors for a bold rainbow pattern. More than 90 Filzfelt colors are available, and the shape and size of the pieces can be adjusted according to the client's intended environment. ABOUT SUBMATERIAL

Submaterial creates thoughtful and precisely handcrafted design pieces for modern interiors. From small residential panels to large-scale commercial installations, our designs are pared down to essential elements of material, pattern, and function. In their simplicity and beauty, these works explore the territory between objects of art and objects of design. As both the designer and the manufacturer, Submaterial can easily customize any of our products, changing color or scale to suit the intended environment.

From its start in 2006 in the rain-drenched Pacific Northwest to our current sun-soaked New Mexico studio, Submaterial has always focused on natural and sustainable materials such as wool felt, cork, wood, and leather. These materials are fashioned by hand into beautifully surfaced wallcoverings, panels, screens, and more by our skilled fabricators using environmentally conscious and lean manufacturing processes.
