OLIVIA & QUINN ANNOUNCES NEW PRESIDENT AND CEO

Curtis J. Bolick named Chief Executive Officer

Newton, NC, March 1, 2019 – Olivia & Quinn, an importer of leather upholstery products, announces Curtis J. Bolick to assume the leadership role of the company. Bolick succeeds Frank Cooper, who passed in 2018 after a valiant battle with ALS.

"This is a win for Olivia & Quinn", stated Paul Henry, Olivia & Quinn's Director of Operations. "Curtis brings global sales, manufacturing, and supply chain expertise. His innovative work at Bradington-Young and HDM, a division of FurnitureBrands International, has become a model that many companies have emulated. Curtis is uniquely qualified to lead Olivia & Quinn forward."

Mr. Bolick previously served Leather Miracles as its Director of Sales. Prior to his tenure at Leather Miracles, Mr. Bolick was the National Sales Manager at Bradington-Young and Director of Sourcing and Merchandising at Henredon/Drexel-Heritage.

"Olivia & Quinn is positioned to set itself apart in the furniture sector and sets itself apart from the typical import business model," Bolick said. "The company is also positioned for brand extension which gives it an edge in what is a cyclical business. The opportunities that lie ahead for Olivia & Quinn are significant, and the opportunity to lead this next chapter is both humbling and exciting. I am focused on innovation in design, enhancing the customer experience, the logistics strategy for brand extension, and digital opportunities for our customers. I am confident in the road ahead, and I am honored to lead this extraordinary company."
